Moving office or expanding?

The Internet Group can project manage the entire move on your behalf - on time and on budget.

Technology plays an increasingly critical role today in most workplaces. Opening a new office or relocating can often result in critical downtime and disruption of customer service as organisations wrestle with the various providers that enable the modern office to tick.

Moving or relocating can be a serious distraction to your core business, and it can prove extremely time consuming and expensive if not planned properly. The Internet Group has significant experience of project managing office moves, and we offer a complete end-to-end service for a pre-agreed, fixed project price. Our qualified project managers supervise all aspects of a move, including cabling, ISP, telephony, networking and direction of all third party providers.

Office Relocation Services

We'll manage the entire move – so you don't have to

Experienced project managers following a process-based methodology that will ensure a smooth and seamless transition. An end-to-end service, including the decommissioning of your existing network, fully insured transportation, and installation.

We plan your new network around the needs of your business. The Internet Group takes full ownership of third party suppliers.

Benefits

- A fully comprehensive service: brief us and we'll do the rest
- Avoid risk of downtime and interrupted service
- Fixed cost: your office move delivered on time and on budget

About us

If you view IT as an investment – rather than a cost – you'll be looking for a strategic IT partner that thinks in the same way. Supporting UK and international businesses 24 x 7 x 365, The Internet Group is based in London, with co-location facilities in Birmingham and New York. Our team is composed of over 35 Microsoft and Cisco trained professionals, and in 2010 we were named as the "IT Service Excellence Supplier of the Year" by the Service Desk Institute.
